FOUR HUNDRED AND FIFTY SENT TO PROTECT AMERICAN INDUSTRIES NEAR COAST.

GO TO GUATANAMO CITY

Where They Will Preserve Peace and Aid the Cuban Government to Put Down the Rebellion If Need Be.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Calmatera, Cuba, June 5.—Four hundred and fifty American marines under command of Colonel Lucius were landed this morning at Dones Point close to Calmanera from which point they proceeded by train for Guantanamo city. The announced purpose of the movement is to guard American property and not for intervention.

The Location.
The permanent American naval station at Guantanamo Bay is south of Calmanera. Guantanamo city is ten miles north of Calmanera and there is a railway connection between the two places. American property in the vicinity of Guantanamo city consists of mines, sugar plantations, etc., located in the Guantanamo valley which is a flat horseshoe shaped basin surrounded by mountains.

ROOSEVELT CARRIED SOUTH DAKOTA WITH A FAIR MAJORITY?

Reports Show That He Has Run Ahead of La Follette With Taft Third in the Primaries.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
St. Louis, Mo., June 5.—With the principal local interest in yesterday's primary election in South Dakota centered in the race for governor, primary judges gave their first statement of the count for that office with the result that less than 300 out of 1,500 precincts had reported early today on the presidential preference.

These returns, however, indicated that former President Roosevelt will have the whole of the South Dakota delegation to the Chicago convention and that Governor Wilson has a good lead over Champ Clark for the democratic nomination.

That Colonel Roosevelt will have a plurality of several thousand is apparently assured. President Taft seems to be third in the republican race, Senator La Follette having polled a substantial vote which in some counties exceeded that of Roosevelt.

Richard R. Pottigrow had no opposition for senator on the Democratic ticket.

The returns thus far show Frank Stealing to be in lead for United States Senator on the republican ticket with S. Dangle, second and R. O. Richards third.

PROHIBITION PARTY OF STATE TO MEET

State Convention at Madison Next Week Will Name Delegates to National Meeting.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., June 5.—Eugene W. Chaffin, who is touring Wisconsin in the interest of the Prohibition movement, in reports to state headquarters here says that delegates to the state convention to be held here next week have been elected in the following counties: Fond du Lac, Door, Brown, Marinette, Waupesa, Marathon, Portage, Wood, Clark, Eau Claire, La Crosse, Monroe, Sauk, Richland, Crawford, Grant, Iowa, Green, Rock, Walworth, Racine, Waukesha, Milwaukee, Jefferson, Dodge and Columbia. Fond du Lac county elected twenty-four delegates last week.

The "dry" are beginning to talk about their state candidates this year. Among those mentioned are Charles L. Hill of Rosendale, a member of the state board of agriculture; and Jason I. Sizor of Sturgeon Bay.

The state convention will elect delegates to the national convention to be held at Atlantic City, N. J. Among those who were pushing to attend the national meeting are J. E. Clayton, Milwaukee; W. F. Perry, Waldo; Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Collins, Fond du Lac; J. H. Smith, Madison; H. H. Tubbs, Walworth; Mr. and Mrs. Beverly White, Madison; G. A. Padlock, Beaver Dam; Mr. and Mrs. M.

LEADERS ARRIVE TO JOIN IN THE FRAY

BOTH ROOSEVELT AND TAFT GENERALS REACH CHICAGO AND MAKE STATEMENTS.

EXPRESS CONFIDENCE

By the Taft Men That President Will Have Safe Working Majority When Convention Opens.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Chicago, June 5.—All roads lead to Chicago today, so far as members of the republican national committee are concerned. The early arrival included Senator Nowell Sanders of Tennessee, who is to be one of the active workers at the Taft headquarters.

Former Governor Burdick of Indiana and Will H. Hays, vice-chairman of the republican committee of that state, P. B. Brown of Chattanooga, former attorney general of Porto Rico and who is to assist chairman Dick in President Taft's campaign in the contest and J. W. Blodgett, national committee man of Michigan.

"The idea of holding open session of the contest hearing is agreeable to me," said Mr. Blodgett, although it is probable that closed hearings would expedite the proceedings.

"Will Senator Root be temporary chairman? Of course, Mr. Roosevelt will not be able to defeat the senator who is one of the early deep men of the country."

Both Statements.
Congressman William H. McKinley and Senator Joseph M. Dixon, respectively, directors of the Taft and Roosevelt forces, signified their advent in the convention city by issuing statements containing diametrically opposite "certainties."

The Taft leader, in a formal statement, said President Taft will be the nominee of the convention with approximately 600 votes on the first ballot.

Senator Dixon, in an equally positive statement, declared: "The nomination of President Taft is physically and humanly impossible with the delegates elected." Congressman McKinley added that the personal presence of Colonel Roosevelt in the convention "would only make the outcome more certain against him."

Senator Dixon indicated that the Roosevelt men "absolutely controlled the convention without taking the contested delegates into consideration."

Numerous conferences of the leaders were held in the morning and the hotel lobbies and the corridors of the national committee headquarters in the convention building were crowded with new arrivals.

At a conference of the members of the republican national committee a tentative agreement was reached today, but session of the committee regarding contests should be open to the extent of allowing representation of the press association recognized at Washington.

Senator Dixon for manager for Col. Roosevelt in his statement said that knowing the personnel of the national committee and believing fully in their spirit of fairness, he had no mental reservation in saying that the 200 contests now pending before that body and they will decide them according to their merits.

This, he said, was all the Roosevelt managers would ask. He declared he believed every Roosevelt delegate would support whatever man had the approval of Col. Roosevelt for temporary chairman and that a talk of a "bunk" by the Roosevelt forces was "junk."

Congressman McKinley declared that President Taft would be re-elected in November for a second term and that the "campaign of bluff, bullying and blunder which Mr. Roosevelt has engineered for the nomination is drawing to a close." No compromise is possible between the candidates, he said.

Sherman Confident.
Washington, June 5.—Vice President Sherman, at the White House today, declared he believed President Taft would be nominated at the republican national convention. "I have not the slightest doubt that Mr. Taft will be nominated," he said. "He will have at least one hundred more delegates than Roosevelt. I would not like to name the exact figure, but that will be near Mr. Taft's majority. That is my real opinion, too, not a mere boast."

PAY THEIR RESPECT TO PRESIDENT TAFT

Officers From Visiting German Squadron Enjoy Round of Festivities in Washington.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, June 5.—The admiral of the German visiting squadron together with the captains of the cruisers Mohke, Stettin and Bremen, and a number of officers including Prince Christian of Hesse-Philippsthal-Barchfeld arrived in Washington at seven this morning from Hampton Roads to pay their respect to President Taft.

This and other calls on high officials of the federal government will take up much of their time today. During the forenoon they visited the secretary of state and the secretary of the navy, wearing the brilliant full dress uniform of the German navy. A lunch in honor of the visitors has been arranged by the German ambassador Count Von Bernstorff and afterwards the German officers, with the four American naval aides detailed to attend them called on the President at the White House where they have been invited to dinner in the evening.

FIGHT ON LORIMER IS RESUMED TODAY BY SENATOR KERN

Second Day's Consideration of Lorimer Election Contest Occurred by Kern's Speech.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, June 5.—With the resumption of Senator Kern's speech against Senator Lorimer, today's session enters on its second day of consideration of the Lorimer election contest but the case is sandwiched in the senate proceedings with the legislative appropriation bill which Senator Warren is trying to press as rapidly as possible.

Senator Lorimer is keeping a close vigil on the proceedings occupying a seat where he can best hear the arraignment of himself and his friends. The Lorimer case was temporarily put aside in the senate today while Senator Kern who is making a two days' speech against the Illinoisan gave way to Senator Page for a speech on a vocational educational bill.

REBELS SENT FORCE SOUTH FOR ATTACK ON GENERAL HUERTA

Engagement Is Probable Near Jimenez But Main Armies Will Not Clash For Some Time.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Chichauhan, June 5.—Re-enforcements were sent south from here today to support the vanguard of the rebels under Colonel Antonio Rojas at Santa Roballa forty five miles north of the base of the federal forces now a considerable distance north of Jimenez.

The rebel cavalry may be moved southward to help him as he has sent most of his own cavalry away on a flank movement west of this city. Infantry and artillery alone to make in Huerta's columns and the rebels may take advantage of this condition by sending back mounted men into the vicinity now held by the federals.

Prospect for an engagement at Bachamba between the main bodies of the two armies are as yet remote. General Pascual Orozco came here today from Bachamba to discuss certain subjects pending before the state legislature now in session.

One of the measures under discussion provided for raising of needed funds it being planned to issue bonds of small denomination bearing interest. The payment of these will be guaranteed by the state and they may be used as currency.

The Mexican congressmen who have come here from Mexico City to talk peace with General Orozco were in conference with him today. The congressmen will stop here to declare at Nuevo Laredo, Mexico, but secret service men will manage to get across the American boundary on their way to Juarez. They claim they represent a faction of the Mexican congress which will recognize Orozco if he lays down his arms.

Types of American marines who have gone to Cuba, and map of the island. When the seven hundred American marines who have gone to Cuba were notified that they had been assigned to duty in the island, they didn't turn pale and beg to be left home. Quite the contrary; for they like the smell of battle, and the idea of going to Cuba appealed to them much as a picnic would to a small boy. The marines are a fine, sturdy lot of men. Their headquarters at first will be at Guantanamo. The insurgents whom they will put down are mostly negroes—poorly armed men without military training.

Cane Mills.
In the valley are great cane fields, supporting also sugar mills, mills owned by American companies, among them the Santa Cecilia sugar company of New York, the United Fruit company and the Nipe Bay company.

One Detachment.
Washington, June 5.—The marines referred to in the Calmanera report are said here to be a portion of those that have been in camp at the United States naval station at Guantanamo Bay since the arrival there of the cruiser Prairie a week ago. In response to repeated calls for help and protection from the planters, mostly Americans between 400 and 500 of these marines have been sent to the city of Guantanamo about 15 miles inland from the American naval station.

Big Plantations.
The large Santa Cecilia plantation is in the neighborhood. Some of its buildings have been burned and some of the live stock have been stolen by negro marauders nominally attached to General Betances' army of insurgents.

Haa Conference.
Signor Rivera, the Cuban minister who has just returned to his post from his country was in conference with Gen. Wood, chief of staff, more than a half hour today.

It is understood that commander Kline of the Guantanamo station has acted under his general authority in discharging marines in the interior.

Washington, June 5.—After a conference between President Taft and Secretary Knox at the White House today it was announced that the government immediately would dispatch four American battleships to Cuban waters.

Admiral Osterhaus, commander of the Atlantic fleet has been ordered to send one of his divisions to Guantanamo. The admiral is at Key West with the flagship Washington and the 3rd and 4th divisions of the fleet.

The Georgia, Nebraska, New Jersey and Rhode Island make up the third division and the Minnesota, Missouri and Ohio make up the fourth division. Each of the four ships carry the full quota of marines.

The ships probably will be ordered to Guantanamo where Americans were landed today, but their field of operations will not be confined to that part. Taft's decision to dispatch the squadron to Cuba waters was reached because of the need of precautionary measure and not with any intent to intervene at this time.

HOLDS UP TO SCORN ANTI-SUFFRAGE LOGIC

MRS. ELLA B. STEWART MAKES STRONG CASE FOR WOMAN'S RIGHT TO VOTE.

NEED OF BALLOT VITAL

Address Given at Ladies' Night Meeting of Methodist Brotherhood
Pointed and Entertaining

By reducing to absurdities some of the stock arguments against woman's suffrage, refuting others by clever analysis and application, and setting forth forcibly but impassionately the arguments for admitting women to the exercise of the ballot, Mrs. Ella B. Stewart of Chicago, made a very strong case for the suffrage cause to the brotherhood of the Methodist church, their wives and friends, who met for the annual ladies' night banquet and program at the church dining room last evening.

The address of Mrs. Stewart, which formed the major part of the program followed the singing of a hymn and a short musical program, consisting of a vocal duet by Mr. and Mrs. Frank K. Deane, and a selection by a quartette consisting of E. E. Van Pool, Charles Condit, Walter Austin, and Frank K. Deane. Both numbers were heartily cheered, and responses were given.

Mrs. A. P. Lovejoy then made a few announcements concerning the suffrage campaign in Rock county, and Dr. E. E. Loomis introduced the speaker.

Mrs. Stewart opened her address with a brief summary of the evolution of woman's rights. In early times, she said, woman had to prove that they had souls, and religious liberty followed. It was long after this that it was conceded that women have brains, and then the schools were opened to them. This was not more than a hundred years ago. A little later social liberty was admitted so that they would have a right to earn their own living, and then the professions were opened to them.

"It is still to be conceded in most states that women, though a factor in government and the state, have the right of a citizen. The right to political liberty stands on the same basis as industrial liberty, and the logic which upholds the one will uphold the other. It is still to be discovered how one sex obtained the power of domination over the other to the exclusion of this right. The women's suffrage movement is a logical step in the evolution of women and the world's movement toward democracy."

Mrs. Stewart gave a very interesting and graphic account of an international suffrage meeting she had attended at Amsterdam three years ago. Sixteen different countries were represented. She came there with the expectation that the American delegates would be "the cynosure of all eyes," but the cynosure was found that those from nations thought decadent and stumbling could report the greatest achievements. At another international suffrage meeting less than a year ago twenty-six nations were represented.

"Why does the question arise almost simultaneously in countries all over the world, varying so widely in traditions, customs, and creed? It is as if the clock of revolution were striking the woman's hour. The true foundation and impelling force is that which led men to fight for the power of self-government. The movement is essentially religious. As men caught the vision that they were created in the image of God and awoke to the dignity of their manhood they threw off tyranny, and the false doctrine of the divine right of kings, and won their rightful liberties. But during all these ages that men rose and progressed, the bodies and spirits of women lay under a tyranny of sex, embodied in law, and custom and constitution."

"The argument that women overestimate the value of suffrage and expect the millennium to follow when they obtain the right to it was denied by Mrs. Stewart.

"We do not expect it to be a panacea. Woman will err and make mistakes as have the men, but we do believe that the millennium will not come before woman's suffrage."

"Women are now as well fitted for the ballot as men. More of them receive an education. Girls graduate from the high schools in greater numbers than boys. Education, too, has created a demand for suffrage. For women conscious of their power and talents are anxious to use them for the service of the state. The women want less to rule than to serve."

One of the most effective parts of the address of Mrs. Stewart was her account of the disenfranchisement of the speaker of the Illinois Assembly. In which she told of "calm, impassioned men, standing on their desks and shouting at the top of their voice; unperturbed assemblymen shaking their heads in one another's faces; and grave, sedate men, hurling chairs and billiard balls; while a disabled legislator, would have thrown a chair at the speaker, had not two women, the only calm beings in the room, been seated on a couch just behind the unfortunate presiding officer."

In this manner she held up to derision that women are not qualified to vote because they are emotional, and cannot act calmly. By merely transferring the logic to a different sphere she proved that everyone should vote because they are exempt from military and jury duty, that they are not heavy taxpayers, and that they are adequately represented by "their potent influence, men's sense of justice, and their male relatives."

STATE STALLION LIST
WILL CLOSE ON JUNE 30

All Renewal of Licenses and New Licenses Must Be Taken Out Now in Order to Be Listed.

Records for the annual Circular of Information published by the Stallion Enrollment department of the college of agriculture of the University of Wisconsin will close June 30, 1912. All renewals of license and new licenses for stallions must be taken out immediately as those received after June 30, will not be listed in the circular of information for 1912. It should be understood by all concerned that every stallion used for public service in Wisconsin must have a license certificate from the college of agriculture and that printed copies of the certificate must be posted up wherever the stallion is used. The license is required and must be posted up whether the horse is used for public service at home or away from home, for fees or free of charge. Therefore the stallion can be legally used (the license certificate must be recorded with the register of deeds of the county in which the stallion is owned and used).

EXERCISES HELD AT LIBRARY HALL FOR GRADUATE NURSES

Commencement Program for Class of 1912 of Palmer Memorial Hospital
Training School Given

Last Evening.

Commencement exercises for the class of 1912 of the Palmer Memorial Hospital Training School for Nurses, were held last evening at Library hall. An interesting program was given at the exercises before an audience that filled the hall. The hall was decorated with blue and yellow—the class colors—and over the platform where the graduates were seated, the class motto, "Vita Vita Vita" was hung. Dr. William McGuire presided at the exercises.

The program opened with a march and a march by the Janesville Symphony orchestra, and the Rev. W. A. Goshel made the opening address. He spoke of the pride felt by the citizens of Janesville for the work done by the Sisters of Mercy since taking charge of the hospital, and praised the sisters and the physicians of the city who have done so much to make it a success. His address was followed by a reading by Miss Gertrude Hemingway, "The Man in the Shadow."

"The Trained Nurse" was the subject of an address by Dr. T. W. Nuzum. He spoke of the rewards of the trained nurse for faithful service, told of the responsibilities of such work, and outlined the duties of a trained nurse to her patients, advising the graduates to be pleasant always, to strive to gain the confidence of the patient, be cool-headed and to cultivate tactfulness. The rewards, he said, would be commensurate with the amount of zeal displayed by the nurse in her work.

Two tenor solos, "I Hear You Calling Me," and "Spring Time of Love," were sung by Arthur Schoof, and Dr. S. B. Buckmaster addressed the graduates with "General Remarks." He stated that he would not advise the nurses to be industrious nor conscientious in their work, because they had to be that to receive their diplomas. They would probably make 50,000 in their work, he said, but in their faithful performance of their duty they might accomplish marvelous work for humanity. Following his address a musical number was given by the orchestra.

"The Evolution of the Training School" was discussed by Dr. J. V. Stevens, who told of the gain in efficiency of the services of the nurses. He spoke of the earlier days in the hospitals when the women who worked there were only practical nurses and unable to perform any of the duties now given to the trained nurse, and then of the training of the nurses whereby they became the assistants of the physicians in their work. The evolution of the trained nurse has been far advanced, said Dr. Stevens; so great in fact that any need for improvement in their work is assured of by their record in the past.

A reading of James Whitcomb Riley's "Knee Deep in June," was given in a delightful manner by Miss Gertrude Hemingway.

Negative advice under the topic of "Don'ts" was given by Dr. G. W. P. Field. "Don't pick a favorite doctor; don't talk of other cases to the patient; don't fall to be neat; don't over show your own troubles to the patient; don't ever lose your temper; don't ever be noisy or abrupt in your movements; don't fall to cultivate a low voice and gentle manners; don't expect too much waiting on; and don't fall to be kindly and considerate."

Tribute to the nobility of nursing as a profession was paid by Dr. David Benton in his address last evening. Nursing, he declared, is a secondary function of womanhood, and one of the oldest professions in the world. He spoke of it as the noblest scientific profession in the world, dealing not only with the laws of nature, but with the application of the laws of human beings, and prophesied that in the near future the educational qualifications for becoming a trained nurse would be raised. Popular fallacies regarding the medical profession and the fanciful ideas of people regarding the art of healing, he stated, could best be refuted by the nurses. Two pleasing duets were sung by Miss Margaret McCulloch and Arthur Schoof.

Congratulations and best wishes on behalf of the Sisters of Mercy and the citizens of Janesville were extended to the graduates in a brief speech by Dr. William McGuire. The presentation of diplomas was made by Dr. Charles Sutherland, who spoke a few words of congratulation to the graduates.

The closing remarks were made by Rev. Dean E. E. Reilly, who spoke of the work now under way to secure a new hospital building, and the need of more capacious quarters for handling the cases of sickness that come under the nurses' care. He predicted success and prosperity for the undertaking because the people of Janesville believe in it. The closing number on the program was a selection by the Symphony orchestra.

TO START AT ONCE RAISING SIDE-TRACK

Agreement Made with Northwestern
Railway as to Method of Doing
Work—Hauling in Material.

Work will be started at once on the elevation of the side track on the west side of the river, so as to secure a passable approach to the Racine street bridge. An agreement as to the method of doing the work has been made with the Chicago & Northwestern Railway, and this afternoon City Engineer C. V. Koren, Superintendent of Streets C. K. Millmore and railway officials made an inspection of the track to come to an understanding on some of the minor points in question. The track will be raised all at once. It is estimated that about 1200 cubic yards of material will be needed. Large quantities of clods have been left alongside the track by the railway and the city is dumping a great deal of material hauled from North Main street. It is expected that the work can be done very rapidly as there is no switching done there in the morning, and the switching in the afternoon can be done in two hours time.

EZRA RICE KILLED IN FALL FROM ROOF

Strikes Head on Step of Porch, Rupturing Blood Vessel in Head—
Leaves Widow and Five Children.

Ezra Rice, a cement contractor and builder residing at 1538 Magnolia Avenue, is dead as the result of fracturing his skull in a fall yesterday afternoon. Mr. Rice was at work making repairs to the porch roof of the James Gregory residence on North Washington street, when the step ladder on which he was standing slipped and he fell a distance of about twelve feet, striking his head against the second step. Dr. Mann was at once summoned by Mrs. Gregory but before he could arrive, Mr. Rice had breathed his last breath. Mr. Rice was a pioneer resident and has a large acquaintance in the city.

He leaves to mourn their loss, his widow and five children, Walter J. Rice, Mrs. John Gossell and Miss Lucy Rice, of Janesville, Horace Rice of Harvard, Ill., and Mrs. George McPhillips of Milwaukee and three brothers, U. T. B. Rice of Mattoon, Ill., Fred and W. S. Rice of this city.

OBITUARY.

W. C. Phillips, a former resident of Janesville, died in Chicago yesterday. He leaves to mourn his loss, a wife and son, Albert J. Phillips of Chicago; one daughter, Mrs. J. R. Whitlin, and one sister, Mrs. Robert Airs of this city. The body will be brought to this city Thursday noon and Odd Fellows lodge No. 14 will conduct a brief funeral service at Oak Hill chapel.

There will be a special meeting of Wisconsin Lodge No. 14, I. O. O. F., at East Side Hall, Thursday, June 6, at 11 o'clock a. m. to attend the funeral of our late brother, William C. Phillips, Janesville City Lodge No. 90, and all Odd Fellows are invited to attend.

GEORGE WATERMAN, N. G.

James Ford, aged eighty-four, died at four o'clock this morning at his home in the town of Porter. He had been failing rapidly for two months. His birthplace was in Ireland. Surviving him are his widow, two sons, P. J. and M. V. Ford, and two daughters, Mrs. Joseph Mulligan of this city, and Mrs. L. P. Montgomery of Evansville. Requiem mass will be celebrated at St. Patrick's church at ten o'clock Friday morning, and interment will be made in Mt. Olivet cemetery.

EXHIBITION TO STIMULATE BRITISH SILK INDUSTRY.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

London, June 5.—The first public exhibition ever held in connection with the silk industries of the United Kingdom was opened today at the Princess's Skating Rink. The exhibition is held under the auspices of the British Silk Association, which was founded twenty-five years ago by a body of representative women, including several members of the royal family, who were desirous of en-

How Money is Made on Wall Street

You will remember that money is not only safe on Wall St., New York, but right here in Janesville, we are making money, and we want the people to know it. encouraging and stimulating the silk industry as much as lay within their power.

Few British manufacturers have prospered more than the making of silk, although the industry does not occupy the important place that it did years ago. Silk was manufactured in England in the reign of James I., who took a great interest in the welfare of the industry, but it was not until 1685, when the revocation of the edict of Nantes sent a stream of persecuted Huguenots into England, that the trade reached the zenith of its prosperity and importance. Among these refugees were many skilled weavers and they established themselves in Spitalfields, where they set up looms in their own homes. For a century and a half this colony was the centre of the silk trade in England, after which period the industry gradually declined until it can no longer be looked upon as a national asset. Of late years the output has been limited, though the higher grades of British silk are still looked upon as the best in the world.

MILTON JUNCTION

Milton Junction, June 5.—The Fort-nightly club met yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. M. A. Richardson, and later drove to The Mounds where they were entertained by Mesdames Marquart, Richardson, Holston, Hall and Carr.

The representatives of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' association of Milwaukee passed through here Monday. They stopped about twenty minutes.

The body of Fred Cuttings was brought here Monday from Sault Lake City, Minn. Burial was made in Milton on Tuesday.

Mrs. Usher entertained Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Hanson of Janesville at ten Saturday evening.

Miss Hazel Palmer is visiting at Geo. Hanson's.

Mr. and Mrs. P. B. Goodrich spent Monday at Delavan.

Miss Nettie Coon has returned from a visit at Walworth.

Mr. and Mrs. Marsh have bought the M. Clarke house on Vernal avenue.

Mrs. W. F. Powers has been entertaining her cousin, Miss Kyle, of Iowa.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Holmes of Cuba are here visiting his parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Becker have returned from their Lowell visit.

Mrs. Georgia Goodrich, who has been visiting at P. B. Goodrich's, returned to her home at Elgin, Ill., on Monday.

Fred Osborne and L. P. Hinkley went as delegates to the Odd Fellows' convention at Madison, Tuesday.

FIND FEW FOOLISH QUERIES

From Those Who Use Good-Reference Books Constantly—Self-Answering is Best.

Fewer "foolish questions" will be asked and answered in Janesville in the future since "The Gazette's" self-imposed task of distributing the New Websterian 1912 Dictionaries, illustrated, is now well commenced.

Stop asking and answering needless questions and start clipping coupons. Then you can let the dictionary do your work. Begin your clipping on another page of this issue today in readiness to join those who have already seen the books and are coming back to take them away as soon as six coupons have been published.

Children's questions should never be ignored. Impatient parents constantly bar the pathway of learning to little questioners anxious to learn. There is a way to save your patience and provide for the children's instruction as well. Let the dictionary tutor your tots.

Children's encyclopedias are the latest fad among the wealthy classes, where the importance of letting the coming generation learn by looking up the answers to its own queries is recognized. Children's encyclopedias are very expensive and very cumbersome, and the New Websterian 1912 Dictionary suits the purpose well and requires far less expenditure and far less space.

Your sons and daughters, nieces and nephews, in fact every person in whose welfare you are interested, should have this beautifully bound and comprehensive illustrated mine of ready reference information always on hand.

The colored plates are particularly well suited for the instruction of the children and the formation of young ideas through the fund of information of which they form a part.

No thumbing over big volumes, no back-breaking bending over book stand or book shelves, no dictionary that would seem to require a derelict to lift it. The concise compilation of information obtained through years of studious effort by eminent scholars is always at hand.

This dictionary is NOT published by the original publishers of Webster's Dictionary or by their successors.

There are three different styles of binding. First, there is the $1 full limp leather edition, flexible, printed on Bible paper, with red edges and rounded corners. Besides the regular contents, revised to date by the best authorities, the volume contains more than 600 illustrations, many of them in rich color plates, and 16 pages of valuable and official charts. All of this for six consecutive dictionary coupons and 98 cents.

Then there is the regular $2 edition, which is exactly the same as the $1 book, except that it is bound in half leather, with silver edges and square corners. It contains all the maps, charts, color plates, etc. A copy of this may be had for six consecutive coupons and 81 cents.

The third edition is $2 a copy on the market. It is plain cloth binding, with the same paper and the same illustrations as the other editions, but with the color plates and charts omitted. This may be had for six consecutive coupons and 48 cents.

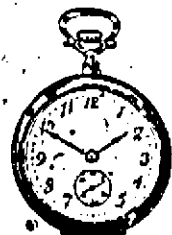

Any book ordered by mail will be 22 cents extra for postage.

ADVANTAGES OF AN All Gas Kitchen

Cleanliness—There is no dust or dirt from coal and ashes.

Convenience—there is no coal to lug up from the cellar. Light the Gas and begin to cook or use hot water.

Health—There is no place for dust to lurk. Gas Ranges and Gas Water Heaters stand clear of the floor and can easily be swept under.

Economy—You use fuel ONLY when you require heat. When you don't need heat there is no Wasting fuel because you don't have any fire going.

Any ONE of those four reasons is sufficient to warrant installing an ALL GAS KITCHEN.

Got the Wrong Girl.

After being married a year, a young man named Hahn, living at Volosen, Dalmatia, discovered the girl that he had not married the girl he intended. When he proposed to her he mistook her for her twin sister, who so resembles her that they can scarcely be distinguished apart. He did not realize his error until he began calling her by her Christian name instead of by the terms of endearment he had hitherto used.

ANYTHING TO WIN.

As the date of the Chicago convention approaches the fact becomes more and more apparent that the slogan adopted by Colonel Roosevelt is "Anything to win." Eight years ago the man selected by the national committee for temporary chairman—Senator Elihu Root of New York—was the colonel's right-hand man. He said of him, four years ago, that he would rather see him president, as his successor, than any man in the nation.

Mr. Root has not changed. He was a republican then and is a republican today, yet the colonel objects to him because he fears that he might interfere with his personal ambition. The following statement, concerning his old friend, was issued by Mr. Roosevelt yesterday.

"In the past Mr. Root has given distinguished service as secretary of state and secretary of war. But in this contest Mr. Root ranged himself against the men who stand for progressive principles within the republican party—that is, against the men who stand for making the republican party, in relation to the issues of the present day, what it was in the days of Abraham Lincoln. He stands as the representative of men and the ward by the bosses and the representatives of special privileges.

"What has recently come to my knowledge makes it clear that it is a question of the absolute duty of every progressive republican to oppose the selection of any man put forward in the interests of the supporters of Mr. Taft in this contest."

The sublime egotism expressed is characteristic of the man. The same line of reasoning would ostracize President Taft and his supporters, from the ranks of the party to whom the colonel is indebted for all the honor bestowed and the fame enjoyed. The "contest" to which he refers is of his own making. Had he been as loyal as Mr. Root and as true to his friend, Mr. Taft, the "contest" would not have materialized.

The colonel is in desperate straits. Just now, and prepared to go to any lengths to win. If his "Rough Riders" fail to stampede the convention he threatens to bolt and will attempt to construct out of the wreckage of the party which has served him, a "new nationalism" of which he proposes to be the central figure.

The inter-ocean, in commenting on some of his tactics, says:

"The contents raised by Mr. Roosevelt are, most of them, extremely frivolous. The argument in most of them is:

"We didn't get the votes, but we ought to have had them, and therefore we ought to be seated."

"The republican national committee gives promise of deciding these cases strictly according to the established party law and without regard to the clamors and threats of the Roosevelt 'Rough Riders'."

"All self-respecting republicans who have not joined in the Roosevelt spree hope these promises will be verified by the event, regardless of their opinions of Mr. Taft."

"If the republican party is doomed to defeat through the malignant activities of Theodore Roosevelt there will be some consolation in having it go down with dignity and not stamped to death by a mob."

FITS LIKE A HORSE COLLAR.

Here's a little incident, reported by the Chicago Tribune, that happened in a Justice Court:

Miss Frances Hilda appeared yesterday before Judge Robinson of the municipal court, suing Mrs. A. Przekwas for $40.50 which she had paid her.

"Here are the dresses she taught me to make," exclaimed the young woman. "I want my money back. She isn't a good dressmaker and therefore she isn't a good teacher."

First, Miss Hilda tried on a coat made under direction of Mrs. Przekwas.

"That fits pretty well," commented the dressmaker's attorney.

"Yes, like a sheet on a rosbush," remarked Judge Robinson.

Miss Hilda then tried on a princess dress which would not button in the back.

"I couldn't make it button," said the young woman.

"That is self-evident," remarked Judge Robinson. "I think I had better ask Mrs. Robinson about them," he continued. "Am just a judge and know nothing about dressmaking except that dressmakers charge a lot."

President Taft's victory in Ohio yesterday was significant, and speaks well for the sober second thought of the people. The whirlwind campaign conducted by Colonel Roosevelt has been so spectacular that it looked at first as though he was nominated in advance of the convention, but about doing does not always produce results. The American people believe in the square deal, and many of them recognize the fact that President Taft is entitled to consideration.

Have you noticed that the streets are being repaired and various other things being done for the betterment of the city, without noise or commotion? The new council works as a unit, on all propositions. There are no ward interests to interfere, and no constituency to be consulted or placated. The business of the city is conducted with the same care and dispatch as a private business, and the commission plan is still in its infancy.

Colonel Roosevelt has disappointed many of his friends. In his opposition to Senator Elihu Root as temporary chairman of the Chicago convention, when he found him out of the party he insulted a large constituency of old-time republicans who are not yet ready to forsake the old organization to gratify the whims and ambition of even so great a man as the ex-president.

J. Bruce Ismay, of Titanic wreck fame, has discovered that the British board of inquiry is too inquisitive for comfort. He has been forced to admit that Captain Smith had orders to make time, when weather conditions were favorable, and says that he was warranted in running at full speed in the ice zone. If Mr. Ismay represented the company, of which he was a director, responsibility will not be difficult to trace.

Roosevelt Campaign Slogan

The Roosevelt campaign song made its appearance yesterday in Chicago. The song is a parody of the famous war chant of the Champ Clark boosters, "You gotta quit kickin' my dawg around." It is sung to the tune of "Caisy Jones." Here it is:

"Teddy's Bulldog,"
Teddy's gotta dawg, but he ain't no bound;
He's a square-jawed bull, and his face is round;
His legs is short, and he's close to the ground,
And you bet they ain't kickin' Teddy's dawg around.

Chorus.
Square-jawed bull, and his face is round;
Square-jawed bull, and he ain't no bound;
Short-legged bull, close to the ground,
And you bet they ain't kickin' Teddy's bull around.

The Democratic dawg, the unlucky bound;
That the boys have all been kickin' around;
Is the same old dawg that's been stickin' 'round;
Since old Abe Lincoln came to Washington town.

And now he comes back, the menaley bound;
With his face and his tail still hangin' down,
The hungry, 'ly old toper-bound;
No wonder the boys have been kickin' him 'round.

MINNESOTA LAWMAKERS EXAMINE WISCONSIN LAW.

Madison, June 5.—Hundreds of requests for copies of the Wisconsin primary election law have been received at the legislative reference library and the office of Senator Larry Follette in this city during the past few days from Minnesota, since Gov. Elmer A. Benson, summoned the legislative of that state in special session to enact a statewide primary law. The Minnesotans are especially interested, apparently, in the second choice provision of the Wisconsin statute. One Minnesota inquirer asked for 200 copies of the Wisconsin law to circulate among the legislators and their friends.

MUST GIVE EXPLANATION OF CAUSES OF DEATH.

Some Physicians in St. Paul Attempt to Conceal Presence of Tuberculosis. Says State Board.

Madison, Wis., June 5.—Physicians will be required to report full explanation of causes in reports to the state bureau of vital statistics. Occasionally, says the bureau's latest bulletin, a physician in good standing will give the cause of death in a case of tuberculosis of several years standing as "asthma from disease, bronchitis, chronic disease, etc." The health department of Chicago will not accept bronchitis as a cause of death without explanation. "It may be necessary," it says, "to adopt some such provision in Wisconsin as the attitude of a few physicians who attempt, whenever possible, to conceal the presence of tuberculosis."

WOMAN SUFFRAGE CAUSE SLUMPS IN MARINETTE

All Efforts to Arouse Interest in Campaign Have Thus Far Failed in Northern City.

Marinette, Wis., June 5.—Women suffrage seems to be at a low ebb in Marinette, two public meetings having in view efforts to organize the coming campaign in Wisconsin having proved futile. The attendance at both meetings was very small and no one seemed willing to underwrite the leadership of the movement here.

Mrs. Isaac Stephenson, wife of United States Senator Isaac Stephenson, was proposed for the presidency of the local organization, but stated that she would not be able to accept. She will, however, assist in the campaign on education.

SMALL CHILD DIES FROM SERIOUS BURNS

Daughter of Harlow Tall of Albion, Wis., Passed Away as a Result of Serious Injuries.

Edgerton, June 5.—A sad and distressing accident occurred Monday morning to the family of Harlow Tall, residing on Albion Prairie. The youngest child, a daughter five or six years of age, in getting out of bed before daylight in the morning struck a match to light the lamp. By so doing she set her night dress on fire and was burned in such a manner that she died yesterday. The family have a large circle of relatives and friends and are in deep sympathy with the afflicted parents. The funeral was held this afternoon.

BUSINESS PICKS UP IN MUNICIPAL COURT

First Cases Brought Up Since Judge Filfield Left On Vacation—Three Drunks Arranged.

First cases to be brought up in the Municipal Court since Judge Filfield left on his vacation nearly two weeks ago were tried before Justice Charles Long this morning. Three men, Jack Kelly, Thomas Corbhill, and John Dougherty, were arraigned on charges of intoxication. Kelly and Dougherty pleaded guilty and were sentenced to five days in the county jail and a fine of $5, or five additional days. Corbhill pleaded not guilty and his trial was set for four o'clock this afternoon.

Kelly had been "flushing the growler" all evening and drinking with a man he did not know, behind a building near the Pivo Pointe. After this had been going on for some time Kelly's companion picked up a stone and beat him on the head. Chief of Police Appleby responded to a telephone call and Patrolman Sam Brown gave pursuit to Kelly's assailant, but he succeeded in making his escape. Kelly was found badly cut up and after he was brought to the station Dr. G. C. Wattle was called to sew up and dress his wounds. When arrested he claimed that his party had robbed him, but this morning admitted that they spent all his money for beer.

Tom Corbhill is a well known police court character who divides his time between Janesville, Beloit, and Ithaca. A year ago he was arrested here after attempting to take a prisoner away from Patrolman Penning.

More About Our Corsets:

There is no article of woman's apparel that lends so much to her appearance as the corset. A good fitting corset that gives the figure a perfect fashion contour is absolutely essential to a prepossessing form. Corset making of today is a science and the innumerable shapes are calculated to remedy all defects in form and enable women to attain the symmetrical shape so essential to a stylish figure. It is necessary, however, to have an expert to fit you, and not choose your corset blindly. We employ experts who have made intelligent corset fitting a study for years, and carrying, as we do, the largest stock in Southern Wisconsin we can give you that "corset satisfaction" so necessary to all women of fashion. In the new 1912 styles we have all the new curves and contours, all of the new lengths from the shortest to the longest abdominal. We also show exclusive styles and shapes not on sale elsewhere. Our prices are always lower than the lowest for same quality. In choosing your next corset let us show you how well we can fit you and how much we can save you on your purchase.

SEMINARY STUDENTS RECEIVED DIPLOMAS

Nine Graduates Deliver Forceful Orations at Exercises Held at M. E. Church—Other Evansville News.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Evansville, June 5.—The seminary graduating exercises which were held at the M. E. church Tuesday afternoon, were attended by a large and appreciative audience. The nine graduates and subjects of their orations were:

Frances Jones: "The Awakening of China."
Lola Smith: "Salutary—'The Crisis and the Man'."
"Habit Back: 'Our Obligation to the Emigrant'."
Pearl Chase: "The Influence of a Great Life."

Mary Paul: "The Great Teacher." Elmer Gilman: "The Force of Principle in American Politics."
Russell Wray: "The Relation of the Soil to National Prosperity."
Edward Burns: "The Problem of the Hour."

Lola Syverson: "Woman and Her Present Duty."
Valdettory.
Miss Alta Miller graduated in bookkeeping.

The piano solos by Miss Ruth Hervey and Lou Howard and the vocal duet by Mae Brook and Paul Chase added much to the enjoyment of the occasion. The orations were all interesting and splendidly delivered. The remarks made to the graduates by Prof. News as he presented each with their diploma were kind and impressive and will live long in the memory of the recipients.

Elder H. C. Flint of the Latter Day Saints church and bride, who were married at the home of Mrs. Flint's parents on South Madison street, Tuesday morning, took the noon train for Madison where they will visit friends for a few days and then go on to northern points. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grafhoff. Miss Vera Dowse of Evansville was bridesmaid and Albert Flint of Mount Horsh acted as best man.

Mrs. Wm. Jones died very suddenly of heart trouble Sunday morning at about three o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Tomlin in this city, where she was a guest. She was a few minutes before three o'clock and around Mr. and Mrs. Tomlin, saying she was very sick. A hurry call was immediately phoned in to Dr. E. E. Colony and also one to her son in Oregon, but just as they reached a response from the son and before the pastor arrived she expired. Her remains were taken to Oregon, Sunday, after brief services at the Tomlin home, conducted by Rev. Endicott, and the funeral was held there Tuesday afternoon and interment made in Oregon cemetery.

Brief Local News.
Miss Ellen Hall, who has been teaching at the Eagle school, has finished her work for the year and after a week's visit at the home of her uncle, Fred Hall of the town of Porter, will go to Minnesota to visit relatives for an indefinite time.

Miss Mildred Hall will accompany her cousin, Miss Ellen Hall, on her summer's visit to relatives in Minnesota.

Miss Nora Smith was a high school visitor Tuesday.
Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Hollister are visiting.

ing their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Orlean Hollister, and Mr. and Mrs. John Hendricks.
J. C. Robinson returned from his New York trip Wednesday, coming by way of Vermont, and making a visit at his father's old home. Mr. Robinson greatly enjoyed this first return to the scenes of his boyhood.

Mrs. Charles Weaver is not improving as rapidly as her friends would wish.
Miss Myra Shuter, who has been teaching near Hollett, has returned to her home south of town for the summer vacation, after a very successful year of school work.

Robert Hall, who has been teaching in the Tupper district, has closed his school and engaged as clerk for the summer vacation with Mrs. Wm. Meggott, landlady of the Commercial House.

South Dakota, Tuesday night, called there by the serious illness of her sister, Mrs. B. C. Jacobs, who lately suffered a stroke of apoplexy. Mrs. Jacobs is well known to some of the Evansville people. Although sorely afflicted with rheumatism herself, she has borne the burden of the care of her son, Arthur, who has been hopelessly sick with rheumatic affections since last January and suffered from delirium much of the time. Arthur Jacobs was at one time professor of music at the seminary, and will be remembered by the older alumni.

Lady Winter of Brooklyn visited her mother on Tuesday.
Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Ballard started Monday morning for Barron, Wis., for a week's visit with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Frazer.

DESCRIPTION OF THE NEW WEBSTERIAN 1912 DICTIONARY ILLUSTRATED
With Latest United States Census

This most convenient and latest of all Dictionaries is based on South Webster's Dictionary printed from new type and profusely illustrated in color. It is revised and brought right up to 1912 by the most recent American and English authorities, designed to meet every demand of a modern and reliable Dictionary.

It includes all words in the English language that do not properly belong to a Dictionary of Technical Terms. In fact, its recent publication and careful revision by the greatest authorities in the world enable it to define and treat a large number of words of recent coinage that cannot be found in any other Dictionary, no matter how cumbersome and pretentious.

Surprising results are obtained in looking up the spelling, pronunciation and definition of a host of words which have been incorporated into our language only yesterday, as it were. Take, for instance: Volcano, Aerobant, Pylon, Cavitation, Biplane, etc., introduced as a result of recent aeronautical activity—although new words as: Trainspotter, Milliken, Cordite, Denatured, Dunlop, Joy Ride, etc.—also Knopl, an animal allied to the Grackle, and brought into prominence through ex-President Roosevelt's explorations in Africa—also Hookworm, Lettergram, Nickelodeon, Stovatho, Hanger Equilibrator, etc.

Thus the evidences of painstaking and up-to-date compilation are found on every hand.

HEART AND HOME TALKS

BY BARBARA BOYD

Happiness as Necessary as Bread

ONE of our country's foremost physicians, widely known also for his writings on health subjects, said in an address to a gathering of leading business men and educational and welfare workers, "Happiness is as essential to human beings as bread is."

Coming from such a source, that statement should command more than the usual attention. We all crave happiness. We all try to get as much of it as we can. But we look upon it somewhat as the dessert of life. If we can have it, all well and good; but if we cannot,—well, we must make the best of it. The bread and butter things of life must be attended to first.

But here is a practical man of affairs, a man who considers life scientifically and not sentimentally, who says happiness is as necessary as bread. He is not saying this with the idea of uttering a pleasing platitude. He is not addressing a religious meeting and after the manner of some speakers at some of these gatherings painting a rosy picture of life, that, somehow, never fits reality. But he is just stating a hard, common sense fact which he has discovered from actual contact with life.

And by happiness he means change, amusement, pleasure,—getting away from the regular, monotonous workaday life, saying the little things and doing the little things that will lift the spirit and bring a glow to the heart.

And isn't he right? If we live in a treadmill of thought, speech or action, our step gets heavy, our blood sluggish. We deteriorate physically. We do not do our best work. Our spirit has no bread, and it grows weak.

If now we bring in some pleasure, some change, no matter how little it may be, our spirits grow, life becomes joyous, we go to our work with appetite.

And we can add this happiness to life in many ways. We can add it by saying the word of appreciation, of love that will lift the spirit. The wife can give happiness to the husband, when he comes home tired at night by sympathy and appreciation of all that he has done for her and the family, by some little change in the menu or some especially dainty, appealing way of serving the meal. The husband can bring joy into the wife's life by expressions of love, by the words and caresses her heart craves for. Both can plan little outings, not necessarily expensive ones, but some thing that will break the monotony of their routine of living. Little excursions, or jaunts of this sort bring happiness to the children. And the whole atmosphere of the home is changed by these little things. It becomes bright and buoyant and joyous. The spirit has been eating of good nutritious bread.

And the one who has no family life should give himself happiness in some form. It is not a superfluity. It is a necessity. In fact, we would all be better off, if we would stop looking upon happiness as one of the extras of life, to be sought after necessities are secured; but would put it in the list of necessities. And if we must take half a loaf of bread in order to secure some right pleasure, to know that this pleasure is as much bread as is the wheaten loaf. It may not seem so tangible. But it has quite as much effect in furnishing as strength for the battle of life.

Heart and Home Problems

BY MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been keeping company with a very interesting young man, and I am very much pleased with him as regards his character, etc., but he has bright red hair and wears a red necktie and red socks and when we are walking along the street, the fellows laugh and jeer at him. This is very mortifying to me. What would you advise me to do? He is going away to school in the fall and he wants us to become engaged before he goes. I think we should wait until he finishes school. Will you please advise me which you think the better plan?

I can do just as I like about it. As the normal work is not required of me, please give me your opinion. RUTH G.

Some of our most admired men have had red hair, so there is no need to feel sensitive on that point. If I were you, I'd buttonhole the young man kindly, though firmly, at some unimportant time and give him a lesson in the principles of color harmony, as applied to neckwear and hosiery. Don't be afraid of him. He'll appreciate your suggestions. You are right in preferring to postpone becoming engaged until later. You will both feel easier for not being pledged.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I expect to begin teaching in the fall, and am wondering whether I ought to go to a summer normal school to prepare.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl twenty years old, and have a good position as a stenographer at $15 a week. I am in love with a young man two years older, who is making $50 a week. He wants to get married, and each continues working as before. Should we do this, or wait a while longer? R. S. A.

A Woman's Observations

By Edna K. Wooley.

It's Time To Think About Them. Nobody likes to think of flies. But the best way not to be compelled to think about them a whole lot later on is to do a little advance thinking now.

We hear a good deal about fly traps right now. The other day, in a magazine, was a picture of a boy and a heap of flies, and a fly trap which the boy had used to catch the flies. There was something like $25.00 prize in that heap. The boy won the prize of $25 offered for the largest catch of flies.

Fly traps and fly swatters, of course, have their use, but they are the "mount of cure." Wouldn't it be far better not to have so many flies to catch or swat?

Here is the ounce of prevention. Don't give the flies a chance to breed in your immediate vicinity. Clean up. Keep cleaned up. Allow no manure or garbage about your house. The plenty of soap and water inside of the house. Teach the children the value of cleanliness. Teach them, also, not to leave doors open, so that when the screen door is up they will be thoughtful enough to close it when they go in or out.

Keep all foods covered, for if there is no fifth around flies will feed on your edibles and infect them with disease.

And, for goodness' sake, screen your house from attic to cellar. Leave no way of ingress for the fly and you will have no cause to complain of his company.

Too many people are stingy about screens. Stinginess in screens means either that you are not getting sufficient air into your house because you dare not open unscreened doors and windows, or that you are letting in dirt and disease with the flies when the unscreened windows and doors are open.

If you can't afford good wire screens fitted to every window, tack netting across the window frames. It's cheap and will last until cold weather kills the flies.

It is not necessary to fill the house with nasty flytraps, poisoned fly paper or to organize the children into a swatting brigade. Keep the flies out of the house and keep the place clean—that's all.

He Proved His Courage. A young lady of our town told her sweetheart she wouldn't marry him until he had done something brave. He started to court the girl next door, and she sent word the second night that he was the bravest man she had ever met.—Seneca Enterprise-Gazette.

The Kitchen Cabinet

IF YOU can't be a lighthouse, be a candle.

One better not know so much than to know so much that ain't so. —Josh Billings.

DISHERS FOR THE VEGETARIAN.

For the increasing number of those who are eschewing meat for one reason or another, and who are studying food values, in order to choose intelligently when arranging menus, the following suggestions may prove helpful:

It is never wise to make a radical change all at once in one's diet; but bring it about by degrees. There are many foods of high value in protoid that are not nearly as expensive as meat. Among the foods that may take the place of meat in the diet are nuts, cheese, macaroni, rice, beans, peas, oatmeal, entire wheat and graham, as well as the whole kernel of wheat cooked until tender. These foods save the meat bills.

Here are a few menus that will be suggestive: Breakfast—Fruit, cereal, corn cakes, maple syrup and coffee. Dinner—Baked beans, brown bread, apple and celery salad, coffee suffice and coffee. When a green salad is used a custard for dessert will supply the food value needed.

Mock Fowl.—To a cupful of bread crumbs add a cup of water and stir over the fire until boiling hot. Take from the heat and add three hard-boiled eggs, chopped fine, a cup of pecan meats or hickory nut meats, a cup of cold boiled rice, a teaspoon and a half of salt, half a tablespoonful of grated onion and the same amount of powdered sage. Mix well and stir in two well-beaten eggs, mold into the form of a fowl, reserving a portion for the wings and legs, stick in a piece of macaroni for the bone and press them against the body of the fowl. Form the wings and press them against the body. Brush with butter and sprinkle with bread crumbs and bake in a quick oven, basting two or three times with melted butter. Serve with apple or gooseberry sauce.

Another dinner menu for the meatless eater is peanut soup, potatoes, egg salad, string beans, steamed flax and cup cakes. Another—Cream of tomato soup, pea timbales, potatoes or rice, fruit salad and graham pudding.

Scalloped Cheese.—Cheese in different forms is an excellent substitute for meat. Butter a baking dish, put in a layer of bread cut in squares, add a layer of cheese cut small, dust with salt and pepper, add more bread, using half a loaf to a cup of cheese. Heat two eggs light, add a pint of milk and bake half an hour in a moderate oven.

DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

By DR. T. J. ALLEN, Food Specialist

EPILEPSY AND NUTRITION.

The theory that epilepsy is closely related to defective nutrition is not new, but recent experience seems to indicate that the connection between nutrition and the nervous derangement that is the immediate cause of epilepsy is much closer than has been generally supposed. I have mentioned the case reported by a French physician who found that as constipation was gradually overcome in a child the paroxysms became less frequent and finally stopped when the constipation was overcome, and that reported by an American physician who observed the recovery of a case as the use of pork was discontinued. In a case that has been under my observation for some months, the immediate connection between epilepsy and nutrition has been clearly shown. A man past seventy had suffered for four years from spasmodic seizures diagnosed as epilepsy by several physicians, and had undergone the regular treatment in several sanitariums. He was placed upon an exclusive diet of cracked wheat at ten in the morning and select soaked prunes at five in the afternoon, with a glass of buttermilk, walking to the point of fatigue twice daily, and drinking two quarts or more of soft water. Exercises were given to equalize the circulation, including the nervous energy; evacuation was secured three times daily. The weight was gradually reduced from 154 to 132 pounds, four below the standard. The paroxysms became less severe and for three months have entirely ceased, with a great improvement in the general health. In the case of a young man observed some years ago, there was a voracious appetite, which gradually became normal as the paroxysms abated, vigorous exercises, including long walks, proving especially helpful, ending with a walk of 1,300 miles after recovery.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

ONE KIND OF GAMENESS.

IF YOU can make one heap of all your whinnies And risk it on one turn of pitch and toss And lose, and start again at your beginnings And never breathe a word about your loss.

—Kipling.

That, according to Mr. Kipling, is one of the "life" whose satisfaction makes up the full measure of a man.

Can you satisfy that "life"?

If you can, you deserve an adjective that I think mighty few women earn—that is "game."

On our return from a short trip which I recently took with a friend, she hurried upstairs to her room and came down with a beaming face.

"Well, I am glad," she said, "I've actually found it." "Found what?" I inquired. She had not spoken of any loss.

"Well," she explained, "just after we started I discovered that my little money bag was gone. It had a hundred and five dollars in it that I was going to put in the bank. I thought possibly I left it on my dresser, but I wasn't sure, and there it was, after all, isn't that splendid?"

"Well, why on earth didn't you tell me about it before?" I inquired in astonishment. "Why, you were just as jolly as usual all the time. How could you be?"

"Of course," she answered promptly. "It would have told you." "What would have been the use of telling you?" she asked. "I knew there was nothing lost but a hundred dollars would be a light matter."

Quite the contrary. Simply she was "game." She fulfilled Kipling's "life."

Indeed she went beyond that. Not only did she fail to "breathe a word about her loss," but she made the effort not to think of it, and that is the last word in gameness—to make your venture take your risk, know of your possible loss, and then bravely put it in the back of your head until time shall have made its decision for or against you.

Few men would have done this, and fewer women. To most of our sex, bred to dependency as we are, it is second nature to expect other people to share our doubts and worries.

I know a woman who is about to invest her savings of several years in a lodging house.

She has definitely made up her mind to take this step. She does not want any advice, but she does want everybody she talks with to spend their time wondering with her as to whether she will succeed or not.

She is the typical woman. Perhaps "gameness" doesn't sound at first like a very splendid quality, but when you look more closely at it and realize that it simply means the serene ability to wait, unfretted, for the verdict of fate, it seems something too desirable for us to let the other sex monopolize.

To me, at least.

The fluff and tinkle of the waffle-maker reminds one that two cups of flour sifted with two teaspoons of baking powder, a teaspoon of salt, a tablespoon of sugar, mixed with a tablespoon of egg yolks or melted butter, one and a fourth cups of sweet milk and three eggs beaten separately makes the beginning of a splendid breakfast for any morning in the year.

See that the waffle iron is smooth; heat on both sides, brush with melted butter, put enough of the batter into one side to fill it two-thirds full, close and cook until the waffles are raised, turn and finish on the top. Waffles like griddle cakes should be turned but once.

Serve the waffles with hot syrup or with butter and powdered sugar. A little cinnamon mixed with the sugar is well liked. Waffles with sour milk, one quart sifted flour with a teaspoon of salt, and a tablespoon of sugar mixed in, add a pint of sour milk and beat to a smooth batter, separate three eggs and add the beaten yolks and the remainder of the milk to which has been added a rounded teaspoon of baking soda. About a quart of milk will be needed to make a sufficiently thin batter. Now add the beaten whites and a tablespoon of melted butter. Keep the heat moderate when baking waffles as the mixture is so much that it searches easily.

Breakfast should be a meal of wholesome and substantial food; the system needs nourishment after a long unbroken fast, the practice of taking only a cup of tea or coffee with a bowl of cold breakfast flakes, or prepared cereals, gives a poor foundation to start a day upon. Even in summer some hot food should form the basis of the morning meal.

Griddle cakes are liked in almost every family; the same is applied to fritters, flapjacks, and batter cakes indiscriminately in different localities.

Flapjacks, properly speaking are made from a thin batter of eggs, sour milk, or cream and soda and flour cooked on a well greased griddle until brown and crisp on the edges.

Our city editor says they always have them for Sunday morning breakfast, he dreams of them all through Saturday night and wakes first of the family in the morning. And when his wife and the maid come down he has the ingredients all ready for mixing. He says he has the knack of tossing the griddle so skillfully that the cakes turn themselves in the air and come down right side up; we had supposed this was one of the lost arts.

His recipe: Stir two cups of flour into beaten eggs and a cup of sour milk, add salt and a little sugar, mix to a thin smooth batter and whip a teaspoon of soda when the griddle is hot and all ready for the bakings.

Grease the griddle with a bit of lard or a bit of butter. When it sizzles pour the batter into the center of the griddle for the first cake and pour the others around it. By the time they are all on the first one will be rounded and showing unmistakable signs of doneness on the under side. Now flip the griddle upside down and turn quickly; when all are turned the first will be ready to serve.

Move On Now! says a policeman to a street crowd, and whacks heads if it doesn't. "Move on now," says the big, burly, mineral pills to bowel congestion and suffering fellows. Dr. King's New Life Pills don't bulldoze the bowels. They gently persuade them to right action, and health follows. 25c at People's Drug Co.

Adirondack pancakes are made like flannel cakes, or camp cakes, but contain no eggs.

Put a tablespoon of butter and one of sugar to a cream and add a pint and a half of sour milk, one teaspoon of soda, sift in enough flour to make a thin batter. Bake one pancake at a time each as large as a plate and cover with butter, then with maple sugar. When several are baked cut and serve in sections, use a hot knife.

Cook Fish In Union Cookery Bags

Get All the Delicate Flavor

YOU want every food to have its own flavor. You want fish to have its own flavor—none of it lost or transferred to other foods cooked in the same way. To get the most palatable quality of properly cooked fish, there is just one way—cook it in the Union Cookery Bag.

Prepare and season the fish in your usual way. Then place it in a moistened Union Cookery Bag—without any dish or pan. Seal the edges of the bag by folding—and fasten with ordinary pins or wire-clips. Place the filled bag on a cold grid or on a perforated shelf which has been taken from the oven before heating—and then slide into the oven. Have the oven just moderately hot. Let the fish cook the length of time given in the time-table which comes with the bags. Or test the cooking by piercing bag and fish with a long needle or hat pin. When done, draw the bag off the grid or shelf on to a plate or platter—roll the bag open with a knife, remove it from around the fish—and you will have the most perfectly cooked fish you have ever served—full of flavor and richly browned.

In addition to cooking every food—meats, fish, fowl, vegetables, pastry, bread—far better—use Union Cookery Bags. They save the labor of washing up pots, kettles, and pans after every meal; save 25% of fuel costs by requiring less heat; and save you grocery and meat bills—for you can buy the wholesome cheaper cuts of meats and cook them deliciously tender in Union Cookery Bags. Also, every ounce of food you buy—goes on to the table, instead of being lost by evaporation and drying out as when cooked in a pan.

A Free Book— with many recipes, written from the experience of expert chefs in Europe and America—has just been published, telling you everything you want to know and exactly how to use Union Cookery Bags for cooking all foods. These books are on free distribution at the office of this paper. Call and get your copy—just ask for the Paper Bag Cookery Book. Be sure to get this valuable Free Book.

Then go to your grocer, meat shop, hardware or stationery store—and ask for Union Cookery Bags. The cost is only a quarter for a package of liberally assorted sizes. If no one of these dealers near you has Union Cookery Bags, insist that the one you trade with must—small get them for you immediately from his wholesale house.

Cook in Union Cookery Bags— save money, time and work—and enjoy the new wholesomeness and tastefulness of foods, so cooked that they retain all their rich flavor and nutriment. Order a package of Union Cookery Bags of your dealer today.

COUNTY BUILDINGS HAVE BEEN INSURED

Policies Have Been Written for Five Years With Old Line Companies In Preference to State.

Following the report of a special committee appointed at the April meeting of the county board to investigate the matter of the insurance of the county buildings against fire with the state, action has been taken by the building committee and the county treasurer insuring the county at ninety per cent of their actual value for a term of five years with the old line companies.

At a previous meeting of the county board it had been voted to insure the buildings with the state in conformity with a law recently passed by the legislature making such action possible by counties so electing. On investigation, however, the members of the building committee found that the rates of the old line companies were cheaper for three and five-year periods than could be obtained from the state. It was admitted by insurance officials at Madison that this was the case.

It was also found by the special committee that a resolution to rescind the action of the board electing to come under the state system was illegal according to the terms of the statute. The only means of securing the payment of the higher rate to the state, it was found, was for the building committee to take out policies with the old line companies previous to the date, July 1st, when the state system would go into effect and when the state officials would take measures to insure buildings in those counties who have accepted the plan to insure at ninety per cent of their full value. With the Rock county buildings already insured at ninety per cent of their full value in the independent companies the state will have no chance at the buildings in Rock county for five years.

Insurance on the court house is for $45,000 and on the buildings at the county farm, $125,000. The policies were written last month. It is estimated that the saving on a thousand for a five-year term, insured in the old line companies, is six dollars less than the state insurance rate.

It is thought by some authorities on insurance matters who are acquainted with the state law governing county insurance, that in counties such as Rock where they have elected to come under the state system, but have taken out insurance for a long term in advance in old line companies, the state will have the right to investigate and determine whether the insurance is for the ninety per cent valuation. If they decide not, the right to write insurance for the difference in the amount already insured and the ninety per cent valuation as they fix it. In that case, it is said, Rock county may still be required to take out some state insurance. Several county officials, however, declare that the state would have no right to take action of such a paternal sort and will not interfere in the matter.

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS.—On circumstantial evidence it looks bad for Father.

A GIRL OF THE LIMBERLOST

By GENE STRATTON-PORTER

Copyright, 1909, by Doubleday, Page & Co.

Pete slipped several more moths into the bag.

"Now, that's fine, Mrs. Comstock," he said. "I'm sorry, but you'll have to make that do. You must get out of here lively. Your lights will be taken for hurry calls, and inside the next hour a couple of men will ride here like fury."

"Well, I'll see them make me go," said Mrs. Comstock. "I've got Robert's revolver in my dress and I can shoot as straight as any man if I'm mad enough. Any one that interferes with me tonight will find me mad as plenty. There goes another!"

"We are close to the old cave," said Pete. "I think I can get into it. Maybe we could slip the rest in there."

"That's a fine idea," said Mrs. Comstock. "They'll have so much room there they won't be likely to hurt themselves, and the books say they don't fly in daytime unless they are disturbed, so they will settle when it's light, and I can come with Elvira to get them."

"They captured two more, and then Pete carried them to the cave."

"Here comes a big one!" he cried as he returned.

Mrs. Comstock looked up and stepped out with a prayer on her lips. She could not tell the color at that distance, but the moth appeared different from the others. On it came, dropping lower and darting from light to light. As it swept near her, "Oh, heavenly Father," exclaimed Mrs. Comstock, "it's yellow! Careful! Pete, your hat, maybe!"

Pete made a long sweep. The moth hovered above the hat and called away. In its flight it came straight toward Mrs. Comstock. She snatched off the remnant of apron she had tucked into her petticoat band and held the calico before her. The moth struck full against it and clung to the goods. Pete crept up stealthily. Another moth followed the first, and the spray showered the apron.

"Wait!" gasped Mrs. Comstock. "I think they have settled. The books say they won't leave now."

"Now, shall I?" questioned Pete.

"No. Leave them alone. They are safe now. They are mine. They are my salvation. God and the Limberlost gave them to me! They won't move for hours. The books all say so. Oh, heavenly Father, I am thankful to you, and you, too, Pete Corson! You are a good man to help me. Now, I can go home and face my girl."

Elvira had sat by the window far into the night. At last she undressed and went to bed, but sleep would not come. She had gone to the city to talk with members of the school board about a room in the grades. There was a possibility that she might secure the moth and so be able to start to college that fall, but if she did not, then she wanted the school. She had been given some encouragement, but who was so unhappy that nothing mattered. Yet Margaret Clinton had advised her to go home and try once more. Unable to sleep she arose at last, and the room being warm, she sat on the floor by the window. The lights in the swamp caught her eye. She was very uneasy, for quite 100 of her best moths were in the cave.

She hurried down the stairway softly calling her mother. There was no answer. She lightly stepped across the sitting room and looked in at the open door. There was no one, and the bed had not been used. Her first thought was that her mother had gone to the pool, and the Limberlost was alive with signals. Filly and fear mingled in the heart of the girl. She opened the kitchen door, crossed the garden and ran back to the swamp. As she neared it she listened, but she could hear only the usual voices of night.

"Mother!" she called softly, then louder, "Mother!" She returned home. The time was dreadfully long before she heard her mother's voice.

Mrs. Comstock entered, dragging her heavy foot. In one hand she held the lantern, and in the other, still extended before her, on a wand of calico, reposed a magnificent pair of yellow Empereurs.

"Shall I put these others in the kitchen?" inquired a man's voice.

The girl shrunk back to the shadows. "Yes, anywhere inside the door," replied Mrs. Comstock as she moved a few steps to make way for him. Pete's head appeared. He set down the moths and was gone.

"Thank you, Pete, more than ever woman thanked you before," said Mrs. Comstock.

She placed the lantern on the table and barred the door. As she turned Elvira came into view. Mrs. Comstock leaned toward her and held out the moths. In a voice vibrant with tones never before heard she said, "Elvira, my girl, mother's found you another moth."

Elvira awoke at dawn and lay gazing around the unfamiliar room. She noticed that every vestige of masculine attire and belongings was gone and knew without any explanation what that meant. For some reason every tangible evidence of her father was banished, and she was at last to be allowed to take his place. She turned to look at her mother. Mrs. Comstock's face was white and haggard, but on it rested an expression of profound peace Elvira never before had seen. As she studied the features on the pillow beside her the heart of the girl throbbed in tenderness. She softly slipped from the bed, went to her room, dressed and entered the kitchen to attend the Emperors and prepare breakfast. The pair had been left clinging to the piece of calico. The calico was there, and a few pieces of beautiful wiring. A mouse had eaten the moth.

"Well, of all the horrible luck!" gasped Elvira.

With the first thought of her mother, she caught up the remnants of the moths, burying them in the ashes of the stove. She took the bag to her room, hurriedly releasing its contents, but there was not another yellow one. Her mother had said some had been confined in the cave in the Limberlost. There was still a hope that an Emperor might be among them.

Elvira took a large piece of mosquito netting and ran to the swamp. Throwing it over the top of the cave, she unlocked the door. She reeled, faint with distress. The living moths that had been confined there in their fluttering to escape the night and the moths they sought not only had wrecked the other specimens of the cave, but torn themselves to ribbons on the pins. A third of the rarest moths of the collection were antennaeless, legless, wingless and often headless. Elvira sobbed aloud. "Everything is gone!" she said.

"Possibly I could get that for you," suggested the man.

With a small rod he sent a long blue splining before him down the creek, deftly manipulating with it a little floating object. He was nearer Elvira than her mother, but Mrs. Comstock thought possibly by hurrying she could remain unseen and yet warn the girl that a stranger was coming.

Elvira was under the bridge, one knee planted in the embankment and a foot braced to support her. Her hair was tousled by wind and bushes, her face flushed, and she lifted her arms above her head, working to loosen a cocoon she had found. The call Mrs. Comstock had intended to utter never found voice. "Possibly I could get that for you," suggested the man.

"Oh, I do hope you can!" answered Elvira. "It's quite a find! It's one of those lovely pale red cocoons described in the books. I suspect it comes from having been in a dark place and screened from the weather."

"Is that so?" cried the man. "Wait a minute. Are you making a collection?"

He reeled in his line, laid his rod across a bush and climbed the embankment to Elvira's side, produced a knife and began the work of whittling a deep groove around the cocoon.

"Yes, I paid my way through the high school in Ombasha with them. Now I am starting a collection which means college."

"Ombasha?" said the man. "That is where I am visiting." He paused to rest, for the bridge flooring was hard lumber, and the task he had set himself not easy. "Possibly" you know my people—Dr. Ammon's? The doctor is my uncle. My home is in Chicago. I've been having typhoid fever, something there. In the hospital six weeks. Didn't gain strength right, so Uncle Doc sent for me. I am to live out of doors all summer, and exercise until I get in condition again. My name is Philip Ammon. Don't you want help?"

Elvira parried the question.

"Have you ever hunted moths, Mr. Ammon?"

"Enough to know the ropes in taking them and to distinguish the commonest ones. I know enough to help you all right."

"Aren't you going north?"

"All depends on how this fever leaves me. Uncle says the nights are too cold and the days too hot here for me. He thinks I had better stay in an even temperature until I am strong again. I'll have this cut out in a minute. You better say 'yes,'" he persisted. "It would be a real kindness. It would keep me out doors all day and give an incentive to work. I'm good at it. I'll show you if I am not in a week or so. I can 'sugar,' manipulate lights and mirrors and am familiar with all the expert methods. I'll wager moths are thick in the old swamp over there."

"They are," said Elvira. "Most I have I took there. A few nights ago my mother caught a 'good' many, but we don't dare go alone."

"All the more reason why you need me. Where do you live? I can't get an answer from you. I'll just go tell your mother who I am and ask her if I may help you."

"The cocoon came loose. Philip Ammon stepped down the embankment, turning to offer his hand to Elvira. They went to Mrs. Comstock.

"Mother, this is Mr. Philip Ammon of Chicago," said Elvira. "He has been ill, and he is staying with Dr. Ammon in Ombasha. He came fishing down the creek and cut this cocoon from under the bridge for me. He feels that it would be better to hunt moths than to fish until he gets well. What do you think about it?"

"Possibly I could get that for you," suggested the man.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, June 5, 1872.—Matrimonial—The department devoted to marriage notices tells the story for two of Janesville's former residents. Dr. Theodore W. Evans, recently a student with Dr. Palmer, and Miss Louise J. Alden, daughter of Levi Alden, joined hands at Madison yesterday, and said yes to all the questions pronounced by a minister of the gospel. Stoughton is to be their abiding place, where the doctor already enjoys a lucrative practice.

By Howard L. Ramm.

What is politics?
Politics is a patriotic passion pursued by people whose lives are dedicated to human freedom and the uplift of the struggling masses at so much per line.

Who take part in politics?
Everybody who can get in and at the same time get by with a restricted salary which does not have to be secured with a civil service examination.

What is a national convention?
A national convention is a place where perspiring patriots get together to decide who shall have the postoffices for the next four years.

What is the order of business in a national convention?
To nominate a president who is in an approachable and conciliatory frame of mind and to him onto a platform which is not intended to hurt anybody's feelings.
Who are entitled to be delegates to a national convention?
Nobody but federal officeholders, members of their immediate families or their helms and assigns.
What is a federal officeholder?
A federal officeholder is a pure citizen who agrees to deliver the Third Ward in one solid piece so long as nobody interrupts the ray roll.
What is a dark horse?
A dark horse is a conservative progressive who is perfectly willing to be hitched up with anybody who has the electoral votes.
What is an insurgent?
An insurgent is a person who trusted to a postoffice petition and got stung.
What is a stand-patter?
A stand-patter is a social outcast who is not allowed to do anything but protect our infant industries.

The Fireside Diplomat.
"I don't want to be nagging at you," Mrs. Maryann began, "but it's the little things that bother me most—" "Ah!" interrupted her husband, sweetly. "I suppose you're going to tell me you haven't a decent pair of shoes."

Groundless Accusation.
Kloosmann—"Well of all things. The idea of his accusing me of making a lie out of the whole cloth—" Peppery—"Yes, the idea!" Kloosmann—"Ridiculous, isn't it?" Peppery—"Oh, very. Evidently he doesn't know how economical you are."
